Building Energy Performance Standards

Opportunity
The Building Innovation Hub designed a pilot program to support a cohort of 20 owners of multifamily housing buildings in Washington, DC understand the Building Energy Performance Standards (BEPS) and formulate a pathway to improve their building’s performance and bring it into compliance.

Our Solution
MD Energy Advisors partnered with the Building Innovation Hub to perform a desktop audit of each building and review the associated Energy Star Portfolio Manager accounts for accuracy. Our team consulted each building owner to educate them about the next steps that should be taken under BEPS, and offered suggestions to correct or improve their Energy Star Scores to comply with BEPS.

“Building Energy Performance Standards are new to many building owners. MD Energy Advisors helped building owners understand their building’s energy use as well as the various compliance pathways available.”
